

TRADEFX

Trade More, Earn More

RISK WARNING

1. General Provisions

1.1. Before registering on the TradeFX website, clients (or potential clients) must thoroughly review this Risk Disclosure agreement.

1.2. Client registration on the TradeFX website, within the trading platform, or any intention to engage in transactions on the platform will be considered as acceptance of the terms outlined in this Risk Disclosure agreement.

1.3. This Risk Disclosure agreement forms an integral part of the Service Agreement dated February 1st, 2022.

1.4. By consenting to the terms of the Service Agreement, the Client also consents to the provisions of this Risk Disclosure agreement.

1.5. The Client understands and acknowledges that the list of risks outlined in this agreement is not exhaustive, due to the unpredictable nature of financial market events.

1.6. This Risk Disclosure agreement serves as guidance only.

2. Purpose of the Risk Disclosure

2.1. The purpose of this Risk Disclosure agreement is to:

2.1.1. Provide the Client with detailed information about the potential risks associated with trading in the financial markets.

2.1.2. Warn the Client about the risks of working with derivatives.

2.1.3. Inform the Client of the potential for financial loss resulting from trading in derivative financial instruments.

2.1.4. TradeFX recommends that clients carefully consider the potential risks associated with any market operations in relation to their financial goals and, most importantly, their financial capacity.

2.1.5. As part of this Risk Disclosure, TradeFX does not discourage clients from engaging in transactions involving derivative financial instruments. Rather, we aim to help clients understand the risks involved and encourage a responsible approach when entering into agreements with TradeFX, selecting appropriate strategies to manage financial risks effectively.

3. Types of Risks

3.1. Trading Risks - Risks related to the trading process:

3.1.1. Market Instability - This includes sudden price fluctuations in the underlying asset.

3.1.2. Clients should be aware that various economic events can lead to drastic changes in asset values. If such an event occurs when the market is closed, the price of the underlying asset at market opening may significantly differ from the closing price. Additionally, clients may miss the opportunity to close an open position at a favorable price, leading to both potential losses and missed profits.

3.1.3. Market Volatility - The financial market's volatility can impact asset prices and trading outcomes.

3.1.4. Market Dynamics - The open market constantly changes. The more dynamic the market, the faster asset prices may fluctuate, presenting both higher profit potential and increased risks of capital loss.

3.1.5. Liquidity of Financial Instruments - The liquidity of a financial instrument may affect the ease of entering or exiting positions.

3.1.6. The value of assets can be influenced by a variety of factors, including supply and demand dynamics and economic or political events on both a national and international scale. Clients must adapt to continuously changing market conditions and understand that factors beyond their control may prevent achieving the planned profit.

3.1.7. Clients acknowledge that processing times for orders in volatile or non-normal market conditions may be longer than usual. Additionally, in such conditions, there may be delays in the order queue on TradeFX's server.

3.1.8. The client acknowledges that a derivative financial instrument derives its price from the price of the underlying asset to which it is linked.

3.2. Non-trading risks – risks related to external working conditions:

3.2.1. Interruptions or total power outages, equipment failure from the Client or telecom provider;

3.2.2. The Client's use of communication channels, software, or equipment that may lead to delayed or missed messages from the Company;

3.2.3. Complete disconnection of the Client's communication channels (physical destruction), causing a loss of communication between the Client's provider, service provider, and the Company's server;

3.2.4. Poor transmission quality over the communication channels used by the Client or the communication provider used by the Client;

3.2.5. Malfunctioning of the Client's equipment;

3.2.6. Disruption of communication channels used by the Company, particularly due to damage caused by third parties;

3.2.7. Actions or omissions by third parties, including malicious actions, that may cause malfunctions or complete shutdowns of electrical systems, communication systems, information, etc.;

3.2.8. The Client understands that activity in the derivatives market relies directly on the functioning of the internet network. Therefore, interruptions or total disconnection of communication channels, equipment, or software may prevent the Client's request from being fulfilled on time or in accordance with their instructions. The Company is not liable for such failures.

The Client acknowledges that interruptions in internet connectivity (including but not limited to software malfunctions, hardware issues, or hacker attacks) or complete disconnection may lead to the unavailability of the trading terminal, website, and the Company's server. The Company is not responsible for any losses (including lost profits or other expenses) incurred by the Client due to such events, during which access to the trading terminal (website or server) is unavailable and the Client's request is not executed. The Client accepts that such events are beyond the Company's control.

The client assumes all risks (including financial) associated with network, software, communication, equipment failures, etc. The client acknowledges the risk of loss from transactions and potential financial losses arising from force majeure events. These include extraordinary and unavoidable circumstances such as:

- Wars, floods, fires, earthquakes, and other natural disasters
- Strikes, terrorist acts, mass unrest, riots
- Changes in legislation
- Interruptions in software, electrical networks, instability in quote flow, etc.

These events, as determined by TradeFX, may lead to changes in market conditions related to financial instruments (assets) and prevent proper fulfillment of obligations. This also includes the closure, liquidation, suspension, or special restrictions imposed on markets that the Company uses for quotes.

3.3. TradeFX reserves the right to provide the Client with various types of information, including analytical data, news, financial updates, and other market-related information, along with comments and recommendations on market conditions (hereinafter referred to as "Information"). The Client acknowledges that:

3.3.1. The Information provided by TradeFX is for informational purposes only, and the Company does not take responsibility for the accuracy, relevance, or correctness of the Information and does not provide any guarantees regarding its reliability.

3.3.2. The Information is intended solely for informational purposes and should not be interpreted as a direct recommendation or advice to the Client.

3.3.3. Any investment or operational decision made by the Client is entirely their responsibility and is in no way influenced by the Information provided by the Company.

3.3.4. If the Information has restrictions for certain individuals or categories of persons, the Client agrees not to share such Information with those individuals or categories.

3.3.5. The Client independently determines whether to use the Information when making decisions. However, TradeFX does not guarantee that the Information will remain relevant upon receipt.

3.3.6. TradeFX has the right to edit or remove the Information at any time at its discretion, without prior notice to the Client.

3.3.7. TradeFX will not offer advice on the profitability of transactions, provide forecasts on open positions, or make recommendations on investment decisions.

3.4. The Client acknowledges that TradeFX's server is the sole reliable source for current quotes. The quotes shown in the Client's trading terminal may not be reliable due to potential unstable connections between the terminal and the server, which may result in some asset prices not reaching the terminal.

3.5. The Client is solely responsible for any losses, including financial losses, that result from not receiving or experiencing delays in receiving messages from TradeFX.

3.6. The Client is responsible for any risks associated with repeated operations if the Client fails to wait for transaction status confirmation from a previous order before submitting a new one.

3.7. The Client acknowledges that information sent or received via email in unencrypted form is not protected from unauthorized access by third parties.

3.8. Closing the web browser window does not cancel any order or request that has already been sent for processing by TradeFX.

3.9. The Client is fully responsible for maintaining the confidentiality of all information related to their trading activities. Any financial losses due to unauthorized access to the Client's trading terminal (Individual Account) by third parties are the responsibility of the Client.

3.10. TradeFX is not liable for unauthorized access by third parties to the Client's personal data, email addresses, content of messages, access data, etc., which may occur as a result of transmitting such information via the internet, telephone, or electronic means.

3.11. The Client assumes full responsibility for any financial and other losses (risks) if they are unable to perform operations due to legislative restrictions imposed by their country of residence.

3.12. TradeFX does not guarantee that transactions involving derivative financial instruments will be exempt from taxation. The Company does not provide legal, financial, or other advisory services related to Client transactions. The Client is responsible for seeking qualified advice regarding any tax obligations and for paying any associated fees, including taxes, for transactions made.

3.13. If the Client's funds for account replenishment (or withdrawal from the account) pass through third parties, TradeFX shall not be responsible for the actions or inactions of such individuals.

3.14. By subscribing to TradeFX's Trading Signals, the Client understands and acknowledges that the Trading Signals are not an offer, a direct recommendation to engage in any trades, or professional advice. Additionally, TradeFX does not guarantee the accuracy, reliability, or timeliness of the Trading Signals. TradeFX is not liable to the Client or third parties for the Trading Signals themselves or any decisions made based on them.

3.15. By submitting a trading application to TradeFX, the Client fully accepts responsibility for their actions, evaluating the opportunities and risks involved.

3.16. The Client selects their own trading strategy and takes actions based on their personal knowledge and market understanding, or by relying on independent professional advice that is not affiliated with TradeFX.

3.17. Any decisions made by the Client on the financial market platform are the sole responsibility of the Client.

3.18. The Client understands that trading in derivative financial instruments is speculative, carries risks, and is suitable only for individuals who are aware of and willing to assume financial, legal, and other risks. Such individuals must possess sufficient knowledge and be prepared for the potential loss of invested funds, considering their financial situation.

TRADEFX

